OVERVIEW

Adela Mann focuses her practice on employment, healthcare liability, professional liability defense, and general business litigation. She represents clients in matters involving negligence, workplace dispute, and commercial liability, and is committed to providing thoughtful, solution-oriented advocacy.

Adela earned her J.D. from Campbell University Normal Adrian Wiggins School of Law in 2024, where she received the Dean's Excellence Scholarship and competed as a member of the mock trial team. She graduated magna cum laude from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte in 2020 with a B.A. in Criminal Justice and a minor in Women and Gender Studies. While at UNC Charlotte, she served as Student Body Vice President and received the Distinguished Leadership Medal as well as recognition in Who's Who Among Students.

Outside of work, Adela enjoys supporting local business, frequenting the State Farmer's Market, and spending time with her dog Ruth – named in honor of Ruth Bader Ginsburg.
