OVERVIEW

Brittany T. Bihun is the Assistant Managing Partner of the Charleston office and a member of the Healthcare, Commercial Litigation, Construction, and Professional Liability practice groups. She handles a wide variety of state and federal litigation including matters involving claims of medical malpractice, construction and design defects, insurance coverage, contract disputes, torts, and other commercial disputes. She also regularly defends professionals in a variety of industries, including health care providers (including correctional medical and mental health providers), construction professionals including architects and engineers, trucking companies and employees, and property managers and owners in claims of negligence and malpractice. She routinely defends providers and professionals against all manner of claims – including claims of catastrophic injury, birth injury, wrongful death/survival, constitutional violations (including deliberate indifference claims), and large-scale construction and design defects.

Prior to joining GRSM, Brittany practiced insurance defense litigation focusing on construction, torts, and government liability. Before that, she practiced construction litigation in Chicago, Illinois.
