OVERVIEW

Litigation attorney Kaitlin Romanelli Myers defends clients in a variety of complex litigation matters across North Carolina and Virginia. Known for her aggressive defense strategies, she represents clients in high-stakes litigation, including professional liability, healthcare, negligence, construction, and governmental liability claims. Kaitlin combines sharp legal analysis with a proactive approach to protect her clients' interests, whether in the courtroom or through strategic negotiations. Her practice is rooted in delivering effective, client-focused solutions to complex legal challenges.

Kaitlin is passionate about her role as a advocate and attributes her courtroom success to her diverse legal background. Early in her career, she gained invaluable experience representing clients in a wide range of legal matters, including family law disputes, civil litigation, estate planning, probate, and criminal defense before focusing on civil litigation. This multifaceted foundation has honed her ability to navigate complex legal issues, think critically under pressure, and craft innovative strategies that deliver results for her clients.
