OVERVIEW

Lilli Friedman focuses her practice on representing a wide variety of professionals against claims of malpractice and defending employers against claims of wrongful termination, discrimination, and retaliation. Additionally, Lilli defends medical professionals, medical entities, and long-term care facilities in claims of malpractice.

Lilli graduated cum laude from Syracuse University in 2012, with a bachelor's degree in Journalism and minor in English and Textual Studies. She spent eight years working in journalism and corporate communications before attending Temple University Beasley School of Law, graduating in 2023. During law school, she was awarded a Law Faculty Scholarship and made the Dean's Honor List. She also served on the Temple Law Review as a Staff Editor of Volume 94 in her 2L year.

During law school, Lilli interned at National Public Radio, working on copyright matters in NPR's Office of the General Counsel. Additionally, she interned at Jones Day law firm while she was spending her final semester of law school in Tokyo, Japan as part of Temple Law's Global Legal Scholars program.

After graduating law school, Lilli clerked for the Honorable James J. Ferrelli, in the Civil Division of the Superior Court of New Jersey, Burlington County.

Outside of work, Lilli enjoys attending concerts and games, traveling, and running.
