GRSM's Alexandria office provides legal depth and convenience for clients and colleagues in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area. Since the office opened in 2012, attorneys here have represented and guided the area's lively mix of government and private interests, along with innovators in information technology, biotech, medical devices, and healthcare.

Notable areas of practice depth for our NOVA-based team include government contracts, government regulatory and administrative law, employment, intellectual property, insurance coverage, real estate, class actions, professional liability defense, and commercial litigation.

We also advise and represent clients on matters related to e-commerce advertising and artificial intelligence, including regulatory compliance, transactions, licensing, intellectual property, and agreements.

Our Alexandria professionals bring their diverse backgrounds to their practices. We have served as judicial clerks, lawyers in government agencies, aides in the U.S. Senate, and even a commander of a nuclear submarine. We work to advance the profession and have been elected leaders of the Northern Virginia Chapter of the Federal Bar Association, Alexandria Bar Association, Fairfax Bar Association, Virginia State Bar, and Virginia Association of Defense Attorneys.
