GRSM's presence in Boston provides a foothold for our representation of clients in New England and across the Northeast. Since opening the office more than a decade ago, we have expanded our team to focus on all aspects of construction law, commercial litigation, employment law, and product liability defense. We represent an array of clients, including Fortune 500 companies, insurance companies, sureties, large construction management firms, developers, public and private owners, design professionals, and trade contractors. In addition, we represent clients in all aspects of both transactional and litigation matters.

Additional areas of practice depth include professional liability, business and commercial litigation, surety law, complex environmental claims, mass toxic tort cases, and insurance defense litigation. We represent numerous product and equipment manufacturers, including manufacturers of pharmaceuticals and medical devices.

Our Boston attorneys help advance the profession and their communities. Several team members serve as mediators and arbitrators, directors of non-profit organizations, and active volunteers with the Massachusetts Bar Association. Many of our attorneys also participate in pro bono initiatives and fundraising activities.
