Headquartered in the Gold Building in the heart of downtown, our Hartford office is a leader of the firm's 50 state, cross-discipline platform. The litigation team in the Hartford office serves national and regional clients across multiple industries, including product manufacturers, professional services firms, and insurers. Our team's experience in complex disputes includes commercial litigation, product liability, toxic tort, employment, construction, trucking and transportation, intellectual property, appellate, professional liability defense, healthcare, insurance coverage, and consumer protection cases. Collectively, we have won trials and appeals in courts across the New England region and across the country.

The attorneys in our Hartford office also represent clients outside of litigation, helping solve legal challenges and providing advice and counsel in intellectual property, cyber, privacy and data security, employment law, mergers and acquisitions, and a wide array of commercial transactions.

Multiple partners in the Hartford office serve as national coordinating counsel, managing cases for companies with litigation across the country, and are adept at leveraging the firm's resources to ensure seamless national representation and strategic focus across multiple jurisdictions.

From corporate contract disputes to wrongful death cases, employment discrimination claims, and class actions, our Hartford attorneys take a creative, practical, and efficient approach to dispute resolution that aligns with our clients' business goals.

We are a close-knit group that is also active in state and local organizations. Our attorneys are leaders in the Connecticut Defense Lawyers Association and the Connecticut Bar Association, which recognized our pro bono work with military veterans in the community. Several Hartford-based professionals serve on boards of directors of local nonprofit organizations focused on the arts, child welfare, education, low-income food entrepreneurs, and other causes.
