OVERVIEW

GRSM's government contracts team offers extensive experience defending and enforcing the rights of contractors in disputes against government entities and private businesses. Our attorneys are skilled in litigating claims in state and federal courts, and administrative tribunals, such as the Government Accountability Office, the Small Business Administration, and Boards of Contract Appeals.

With a team of attorneys located across the United States, GRSM is well-positioned to represent contractors of all sizes in a diverse range of industries, including defense, information technology, construction, and aerospace, among others.

Our areas of proficiency encompass a wide array of contractual and administrative claims involving the government. We handle litigation involving the False Claims Act, the Defend Trade Secrets Act, surety bond claims, the Contract Disputes Act, sole source award challenges, CPARS challenges, OHA appeals, qui tam defenses, civil investigative demands, and bid protests at the local, state, and federal levels. Beyond these core areas, our team also brings deep knowledge in related fields impacting contractors, such as data security and protection, employment, intellectual property, antitrust, and transactional matters.
